

CIVIL SERVICE.

THE INVESTIGATION CONTINUED AT WASHINGTON YESTERDAY.

Stole Loudly—The Unseating of Mr. Pendleton—Mr. Randall's Condition—Minor Mention.

From Our Regular Correspondent

but when asked to give the sources of their information, declined to do so, the ground that it would be a gross betrayal of confidence. Seckendorff and DeWitt E. Parker, James C. Edwards, George G. Edwards, and Morris R. W. Watkins and Wood Boulard, Jr., of fax Courthouse, Hon. W. A. Anderson, of the bridge was also present. Some visitors were met by a good delegation of South Boston's business men. Major Otter was called to the chair and Mr. Joseph Stebbins was seated in his place. Mr. Anderson stated the object of the meeting was a committee consisting of H. A. Edmundson, Alexander Bruce, and Joseph Stebbins was appointed to solicit subscriptions to the capital stock of the company, with power to make changes whenever they saw fit for permanent organization and the election of officers. Another committee, consisting of Hon. R. E. Miller and Joseph Stebbins was appointed to meet the members of the corporation in order to answer any questions that might be asked concerning his office and the administration of his office, and to make such changes as he deemed fit. He did not refer to the sale of the shares, or any bulletins, or any bulletins, but he had learned of the fact of his confirmation before leaving the Capitol.

Mr. Edmundson said that the men who are supposed to be perfectly safe are no better than other folks, and have a poor opinion of laws and regulations. The Washington Post commented this night, that it was being pushed with a vigor which it is hard to conceive is going to get hurt. Mr. Roosevelt has a very strong political chieftain in the Senate who spans from prominence a few years ago, and who is a man of more ability than himself. He is not a man who is easily satisfied, and a painful time since the investigation began. Mr. Roosevelt is comparatively a new man on the commission, but Mr. Lyman, the wicked man of the hunting concern, has grown gray in this monotonous business, its harasses and torments an ardent professional reformer like Mr. Roosevelt to sit and hear testimony that may be given by a man who is deeply interested in the culling of the game. The protection which has been given Alexander C. Campbell, the brother-in-law of Lyman, is simply shameful. It is admitted by Campbell that he was prompted to do this, and the evidence also shows that even after he had violated the law in buying question, and giving them out he was allowed not only to sit in his position after a trial, but to remain in it. The gentle remandant, Mr. Lyman, amounted to nothing. Campbell ought to have been discharged, and the only reason that he was not is that the brother-in-law shielded him.

The commissioners bowed loudly for the investigation, and made light of the charges, but the facts brought out solar are most disastrous to Lyman and his supporters, and the men who made up Lyman and Campbell are not bounded some portion of the town will be badly mistaken.

Another sweet-sounding specimen of inconsistency is illustrated in the case of H. C. Campbell, of Atlanta. He was nominated to the Senate by the Associated Press, and was unopposed in the nomination, and he was nominated by the Senate without the knowledge of the Senate.

The executive session this afternoon was devoted to confirming nominations and receiving reports from committees. A formal hearing on the Senate floor was held, and the Senate adjourned without the nomination of H. C. Warmouth to be collector of the port of New Orleans.

President Nominations.—(By telegraph to the Dispatch.)

Washington, February 27.—The President today nominated Henry C. Call, of Arkansas, United States Circuit Judge for the Eighth circuit, see Law J. Brewer.

Supervisor of Census: Peyton C. Smithson, third district of Tennessee.

Postmaster: Georgia—Jacob M. Alexander; Florida—J. W. Ingraham; Fletcher, Mississippi—James G. McWhiney; Canton, Tennessee—William M. Moss.

Conferrals.—(By telegraph to the Dispatch.)

Washington, February 27.—The Senate confirmed the following nominations: Charles Price, United States Attorney for the Western district of North Carolina; United States Marshal—Joshua R. Hill; Eastern district of North Carolina; Richard R. Hill, Eastern district of North Carolina; Land Officer—William C. Wells, Huntsville, Ala.

Surveyor of Customs—E. V. Matson, Chattanooga.

Surgeon of Corps—G. S. McMillin, fifth district of Mississippi.

Postmasters—Alabama—William T. Evans; Gadsden; Mary M. Force, Selma; Florida—H. G. Howard, Deland; Polk, Lakeland; Sanford; H. H. Harrington, West Point; J. C. Eckles, Tampa, Virginia—Charles R. Lee, Bessemer.

Washington Notes.—(By telegraph to the Dispatch.)

Washington, February 27.—Commodore White, Commander of the Bureau of Yards and Docks, Navy Department, died at his residence, 100 Madison avenue, on Friday evening. He was 70 years old.

Mr. Pendleton made a speech in the House yesterday, in which he said that a request for seal had been refused him at the Agricultural Department on the ground that he was not a congressman, and it will be observed that Mr. Pendleton did not make any such demand, but Claude Jerry Russel, his friend, judged the case in advance. It is understood that this course was pursued at the department because of the Republican cause decision reached by the Senate on the 17th. What is now known is that the same outragous rule was applied to Mr. Jackson, of West Virginia, before he was unseated.

Mr. Pendleton was raised again to speak, and his speech was published in the papers, which took up the Washington correspondence with orders to let them know at once of the report that Mr. Jackson was dead.

On Saturday morning, Mr. Pendleton went to the house of his son, Mr. Pendleton, of Atlanta, Georgia, and remained until the afternoon. He was received by his wife, and the two of them sat down to a quiet meal.

In the afternoon Mr. Pendleton was received by his son, Mr. Pendleton, of Atlanta, Georgia, and remained until the afternoon. He was received by his wife, and the two of them sat down to a quiet meal.

Mr. Pendleton made a speech in the House yesterday, in which he said that a request for seal had been refused him at the Agricultural Department on the ground that he was not a congressman, and it will be observed that Mr. Pendleton did not make any such demand, but Claude Jerry Russel, his friend, judged the case in advance. It is understood that this course was pursued at the department because of the Republican cause decision reached by the Senate on the 17th. What is now known is that the same outragous rule was applied to Mr. Jackson, of West Virginia, before he was unseated.

Mr. Pendleton was raised again to speak, and his speech was published in the papers, which took up the Washington correspondence with orders to let them know at once of the report that Mr. Jackson was dead.

On Saturday morning, Mr. Pendleton went to the house of his son, Mr. Pendleton, of Atlanta, Georgia, and remained until the afternoon. He was received by his wife, and the two of them sat down to a quiet meal.

In the afternoon Mr. Pendleton was received by his son, Mr. Pendleton, of Atlanta, Georgia, and remained until the afternoon. He was received by his wife, and the two of them sat down to a quiet meal.

Mr. Pendleton made a speech in the House yesterday, in which he said that a request for seal had been refused him at the Agricultural Department on the ground that he was not a congressman, and it will be observed that Mr. Pendleton did not make any such demand, but Claude Jerry Russel, his friend, judged the case in advance. It is understood that this course was pursued at the department because of the Republican cause decision reached by the Senate on the 17th. What is now known is that the same outragous rule was applied to Mr. Jackson, of West Virginia, before he was unseated.

Mr. Pendleton was raised again to speak, and his speech was published in the papers, which took up the Washington correspondence with orders to let them know at once of the report that Mr. Jackson was dead.

On Saturday morning, Mr. Pendleton went to the house of his son, Mr. Pendleton, of Atlanta, Georgia, and remained until the afternoon. He was received by his wife, and the two of them sat down to a quiet meal.

In the afternoon Mr. Pendleton was received by his son, Mr. Pendleton, of Atlanta, Georgia, and remained until the afternoon. He was received by his wife, and the two of them sat down to a quiet meal.

Mr. Pendleton made a speech in the House yesterday, in which he said that a request for seal had been refused him at the Agricultural Department on the ground that he was not a congressman, and it will be observed that Mr. Pendleton did not make any such demand, but Claude Jerry Russel, his friend, judged the case in advance. It is understood that this course was pursued at the department because of the Republican cause decision reached by the Senate on the 17th. What is now known is that the same outragous rule was applied to Mr. Jackson, of West Virginia, before he was unseated.

Mr. Pendleton was raised again to speak, and his speech was published in the papers, which took up the Washington correspondence with orders to let them know at once of the report that Mr. Jackson was dead.

On Saturday morning, Mr. Pendleton went to the house of his son, Mr. Pendleton, of Atlanta, Georgia, and remained until the afternoon. He was received by his wife, and the two of them sat down to a quiet meal.

In the afternoon Mr. Pendleton was received by his son, Mr. Pendleton, of Atlanta, Georgia, and remained until the afternoon. He was received by his wife, and the two of them sat down to a quiet meal.

Mr. Pendleton made a speech in the House yesterday, in which he said that a request for seal had been refused him at the Agricultural Department on the ground that he was not a congressman, and it will be observed that Mr. Pendleton did not make any such demand, but Claude Jerry Russel, his friend, judged the case in advance. It is understood that this course was pursued at the department because of the Republican cause decision reached by the Senate on the 17th. What is now known is that the same outragous rule was applied to Mr. Jackson, of West Virginia, before he was unseated.

Mr. Pendleton was raised again to speak, and his speech was published in the papers, which took up the Washington correspondence with orders to let them know at once of the report that Mr. Jackson was dead.

On Saturday morning, Mr. Pendleton went to the house of his son, Mr. Pendleton, of Atlanta, Georgia, and remained until the afternoon. He was received by his wife, and the two of them sat down to a quiet meal.

In the afternoon Mr. Pendleton was received by his son, Mr. Pendleton, of Atlanta, Georgia, and remained until the afternoon. He was received by his wife, and the two of them sat down to a quiet meal.

Mr. Pendleton made a speech in the House yesterday, in which he said that a request for seal had been refused him at the Agricultural Department on the ground that he was not a congressman, and it will be observed that Mr. Pendleton did not make any such demand, but Claude Jerry Russel, his friend, judged the case in advance. It is understood that this course was pursued at the department because of the Republican cause decision reached by the Senate on the 17th. What is now known is that the same outragous rule was applied to Mr. Jackson, of West Virginia, before he was unseated.

Mr. Pendleton was raised again to speak, and his speech was published in the papers, which took up the Washington correspondence with orders to let them know at once of the report that Mr. Jackson was dead.

On Saturday morning, Mr. Pendleton went to the house of his son, Mr. Pendleton, of Atlanta, Georgia, and remained until the afternoon. He was received by his wife, and the two of them sat down to a quiet meal.

In the afternoon Mr. Pendleton was received by his son, Mr. Pendleton, of Atlanta, Georgia, and remained until the afternoon. He was received by his wife, and the two of them sat down to a quiet meal.

Mr. Pendleton made a speech in the House yesterday, in which he said that a request for seal had been refused him at the Agricultural Department on the ground that he was not a congressman, and it will be observed that Mr. Pendleton did not make any such demand, but Claude Jerry Russel, his friend, judged the case in advance. It is understood that this course was pursued at the department because of the Republican cause decision reached by the Senate on the 17th. What is now known is that the same outragous rule was applied to Mr. Jackson, of West Virginia, before he was unseated.

Mr. Pendleton was raised again to speak, and his speech was published in the papers, which took up the Washington correspondence with orders to let them know at once of the report that Mr. Jackson was dead.

On Saturday morning, Mr. Pendleton went to the house of his son, Mr. Pendleton, of Atlanta, Georgia, and remained until the afternoon. He was received by his wife, and the two of them sat down to a quiet meal.

In the afternoon Mr. Pendleton was received by his son, Mr. Pendleton, of Atlanta, Georgia, and remained until the afternoon. He was received by his wife, and the two of them sat down to a quiet meal.

Mr. Pendleton made a speech in the House yesterday, in which he said that a request for seal had been refused him at the Agricultural Department on the ground that he was not a congressman, and it will be observed that Mr. Pendleton did not make any such demand, but Claude Jerry Russel, his friend, judged the case in advance. It is understood that this course was pursued at the department because of the Republican cause decision reached by the Senate on the 17th. What is now known is that the same outragous rule was applied to Mr. Jackson, of West Virginia, before he was unseated.

Mr. Pendleton was raised again to speak, and his speech was published in the papers, which took up the Washington correspondence with orders to let them know at once of the report that Mr. Jackson was dead.

On Saturday morning, Mr. Pendleton went to the house of his son, Mr. Pendleton, of Atlanta, Georgia, and remained until the afternoon. He was received by his wife, and the two of them sat down to a quiet meal.

In the afternoon Mr. Pendleton was received by his son, Mr. Pendleton, of Atlanta, Georgia, and remained until the afternoon. He was received by his wife, and the two of them sat down to a quiet meal.

Mr. Pendleton made a speech in the House yesterday, in which he said that a request for seal had been refused him at the Agricultural Department on the ground that he was not a congressman, and it will be observed that Mr. Pendleton did not make any such demand, but Claude Jerry Russel, his friend, judged the case in advance. It is understood that this course was pursued at the department because of the Republican cause decision reached by the Senate on the 17th. What is now known is that the same outragous rule was applied to Mr. Jackson, of West Virginia, before he was unseated.

Mr. Pendleton was raised again to speak, and his speech was published in the papers, which took up the Washington correspondence with orders to let them know at once of the report that Mr. Jackson was dead.

On Saturday morning, Mr. Pendleton went to the house of his son, Mr. Pendleton, of Atlanta, Georgia, and remained until the afternoon. He was received by his wife, and the two of them sat down to a quiet meal.

In the afternoon Mr. Pendleton was received by his son, Mr. Pendleton, of Atlanta, Georgia, and remained until the afternoon. He was received by his wife, and the two of them sat down to a quiet meal.

Mr. Pendleton made a speech in the House yesterday, in which he said that a request for seal had been refused him at the Agricultural Department on the ground that he was not a congressman, and it will be observed that Mr. Pendleton did not make any such demand, but Claude Jerry Russel, his friend, judged the case in advance. It is understood that this course was pursued at the department because of the Republican cause decision reached by the Senate on the 17th. What is now known is that the same outragous rule was applied to Mr. Jackson, of West Virginia, before he was unseated.

Mr. Pendleton was raised again to speak, and his speech was published in the papers, which took up the Washington correspondence with orders to let them know at once of the report that Mr. Jackson was dead.

On Saturday morning, Mr. Pendleton went to the house of his son, Mr. Pendleton, of Atlanta, Georgia, and remained until the afternoon. He was received by his wife, and the two of them sat down to a quiet meal.

In the afternoon Mr. Pendleton was received by his son, Mr. Pendleton, of Atlanta, Georgia, and remained until the afternoon. He was received by his wife, and the two of them sat down to a quiet meal.

Mr. Pendleton made a speech in the House yesterday, in which he said that a request for seal had been refused him at the Agricultural Department on the ground that he was not a congressman, and it will be observed that Mr. Pendleton did not make any such demand, but Claude Jerry Russel, his friend, judged the case in advance. It is understood that this course was pursued at the department because of the Republican cause decision reached by the Senate on the 17th. What is now known is that the same outragous rule was applied to Mr. Jackson, of West Virginia, before he was unseated.

Mr. Pendleton was raised again to speak, and his speech was published in the papers, which took up the Washington correspondence with orders to let them know at once of the report that Mr. Jackson was dead.

On Saturday morning, Mr. Pendleton went to the house of his son, Mr. Pendleton, of Atlanta, Georgia, and remained until the afternoon. He was received by his wife, and the two of them sat down to a quiet meal.

In the afternoon Mr. Pendleton was received by his son, Mr. Pendleton, of Atlanta, Georgia, and remained until the afternoon. He was received by his wife, and the two of them sat down to a quiet meal.

Mr. Pendleton made a speech in the House yesterday, in which he said that a request for seal had been refused him at the Agricultural Department on the ground that he was not a congressman, and it will be observed that Mr. Pendleton did not make any such demand, but Claude Jerry Russel, his friend, judged the case in advance. It is understood that this course was pursued at the department because of the Republican cause decision reached by the Senate on the 17th. What is now known is that the same outragous rule was applied to Mr. Jackson, of West Virginia, before he was unseated.

Mr. Pendleton was raised again to speak, and his speech was published in the papers, which took up the Washington correspondence with orders to let them know at once of the report that Mr. Jackson was dead.

On Saturday morning, Mr. Pendleton went to the house of his son, Mr. Pendleton, of Atlanta, Georgia, and remained until the afternoon. He was received by his wife, and the two of them sat down to a quiet meal.

In the afternoon Mr. Pendleton was received by his son, Mr. Pendleton, of Atlanta, Georgia, and remained until the afternoon. He was received by his wife, and the two of them sat down to a quiet meal.

Mr. Pendleton made a speech in the House yesterday, in which he said that a request for seal had been refused him at the Agricultural Department on the ground that he was not a congressman, and it will be observed that Mr. Pendleton did not make any such demand, but Claude Jerry Russel, his friend, judged the case in advance. It is understood that this course was pursued at the department because of the Republican cause decision reached by the Senate on the 17th. What is now known is that the same outragous rule was applied to Mr. Jackson, of West Virginia, before he was unseated.

Mr. Pendleton was raised again to speak, and his speech was published in the papers, which took up the Washington correspondence with orders to let them know at once of the report that Mr. Jackson was dead.

On Saturday morning, Mr. Pendleton went to the house of his son, Mr. Pendleton, of Atlanta, Georgia, and remained until the afternoon. He was received by his wife, and the two of them sat down to a quiet meal.

In the afternoon Mr. Pendleton was received by his son, Mr. Pendleton, of Atlanta, Georgia, and remained until the afternoon. He was received by his wife, and the two of them sat down to a quiet meal.

Mr. Pendleton made a speech in the House yesterday, in which he said that a request for seal had been refused him at the Agricultural Department on the ground that he was not a congressman, and it will be observed that Mr. Pendleton did not make any such demand, but Claude Jerry Russel, his friend, judged the case in advance. It is understood that this course was pursued at the department because of the Republican cause decision reached by the Senate on the 17th. What is now known is that the same outragous rule was applied to Mr. Jackson, of West Virginia, before he was unseated.

Mr. Pendleton was raised again to speak, and his speech was published in the papers, which took up the Washington correspondence with orders to let them know at once of the report that Mr. Jackson was dead.

On Saturday morning, Mr. Pendleton went to the house of his son, Mr. Pendleton, of Atlanta, Georgia, and remained until the afternoon. He was received by his wife, and the two of them sat down to a quiet meal.

In the afternoon Mr. Pendleton was received by his son, Mr. Pendleton, of Atlanta, Georgia, and remained until the afternoon. He was received by his wife, and the two of them sat down to a quiet meal.

Mr. Pendleton made a speech in the House yesterday, in which he said that a request for seal had been refused him at the Agricultural Department on the ground that he was not a congressman, and it will be observed that Mr. Pendleton did not make any such demand, but Claude Jerry Russel, his friend, judged the case in advance. It is understood that this course was pursued at the department because of the Republican cause decision reached by the Senate on the 17th. What is now known is that the same outragous rule was applied to Mr. Jackson, of West Virginia, before he was unseated.

Mr. Pendleton was raised again to speak, and his speech was published in the papers, which took up the Washington correspondence with orders to let them know at once of the report that Mr. Jackson was dead.

On Saturday morning, Mr. Pendleton went to the house of his son, Mr. Pendleton, of Atlanta, Georgia, and remained until the afternoon. He was received by his wife, and the two of them sat down to a quiet meal.